Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Indianapolis under the act of March 3, 1879.

MET Norman Isaacs at the A. Z. A. rush-stag at the Lincoln Hotel Tuesday night, and we got o talking shop. I suggested that he ought to make his column, "Frankly Speaking" into a front page daily feature, and the upshot of our conversation was that he recommended that I write a front-page column for The Post. I objected on the grounds that so much of the paper was mine already, that it would get top heavy with tripe that I write. But here I am, and I justify this attempt because it fits in with my belief that the weekly paper can best fulfill its role by returning to the old type of personal journalism of the Henry Watterson school.

Have a note from Dick Kramer, erstwhile of Kirshbaum Center, with some additional information about Capt. Robert Kushner, who slept in the upper deck above me in our fraternity house. "Enjoyed your story of Bob Kushner," Dick wrote, "of whom you have reason be proud. Incidentally he was mentioned with great distinction in the Air Forces News Letter of June 1942, the official publication of the Army Air Forces." Dick is now at Miami Beach in the Administrative Officers Candidate School of the Army Air Force.

Was over in Terre Haute Tuesday and learned why anybody connected with B'nai B'rith has about as much chance of making a living as I have of walking on water. I went into Lew Sutin's office, and he asked if I ran into Dave Rubin, who just that moment had walked out after an hour or so of discussion on Dave's new appointment as Retention Chairman for Indiana by the District Grand Lodge. Well I took another hour of Brother Sutin's time, and Lew with a full morning's work done toward earning that daily bread, went down the elevator with me. Lew, incidentally, was honored recently with a gigantic home-town banquet in (Continued on page 4)

THREE GARY FAMILIES EACH HAVE THREE SONS IN THE SERVICE

Special GARY — Lake Lodge of B'nai B'rith here has wished Godspeed to 60 of its members to the American armed forces. The five dozen blue stars in the lodge's 1942 service flag represents just about onesixth of the total membership, which now stands

The B'nai B'rith lads are giving exceptionally good account of themselves in all services as indicated by the fact that of those inducted so far, 17 have won officers' commissions or are being groomed for lieutenancies at various officers' training camps. At least seven others have been promoted to noncom. status, 6 of them to sergeant.

According to Herbert Morris, president, the lodge has assumed annual dues and all other fraternal obligations of the members serving with the colors "for the duration." In addition it has formed a special "Service for Service Men Committee." This group under chairmanship of Alex B. Levee keeps in touch with the warriors insofar as conditions permit and regularly sends them gift packages.

A source of pride for members is the fact, revealed by Secretary Arnold Weiner, that three Gary families whose surnames appear on the member rolls have each contributed three sons to the armed services.

The parents of these men are Mr. and Mrs. David Weiss, Max Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Laube.

Following is a complete list of names of the lodge members now serving their country under arms:

Rabbi Judah Cahn, director of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Counselorships at Smith College and Massachusetts State College, has discovered that Thomas Jefferson was a pioneer believer in institutions such as the Hillel Foundations. In a letter dated October 7, 1814, Jefferson wrote that "in our annual report to the legislature we suggest the expediency of encouraging the different religious sects to establish, each of itself, a professorship of their own tenets on the confines of the university, so near as that their students may attend the lectures there, and have free use of our library and every other accommodation we can give them; preserving, however, their independence of w and of each other".

Fifty students of the Yeshiva College and the affiliated Rabbi Isaac Elchanan Theological Seminary, including five ordained rabbis and two refugees from Germany, this week went to the Red Cross blood donor center in New York in a group and donated a pint of blood, each, for use by the armed forces of the Allies. Another group of 100 students at the College will contribute blood some time next month.

Rabbi Elias Charry conducted services at Fort Benjamin Harrison last Friday. This was Rabbi Charry's farewell service at the Fort. There has been a steady increase in the number of Jewish soldiers attending these services. William Rosenberg, U.S.O.-J.W.B. director, is asking for women and men volunteers, to attend these services and remain for a social hour after services each Friday.

Last Sunday evening a kosher supper was served at Kirshbaum Center-U.S.O. Club, for about 85 soldiers and sailors. The sponsoring committee was in charge of Mrs. Abe Klapper and consisted of the following persons: Mesdames Moie Olshewitz, Max Rutenberg, Isidor Berger, William Epstein, Harry Miller, Harry Barrett, Maurice Tavel, Phil Sacks, Irvin Rice, H. Dobrowitz, Al Pollock, Max Gelman, Mrs. Nellie Barnett and Misses Rebecca Dobrowitz and Bessie Barrett. Among the interested visitors was Rabbi Nandor Fruchter, of the Central Hebrew Congregation. After supper, a group of soldiers and Cadettes gathered around the piano in the lounge, for some informal community singing. They were ably accompanied by Private Sidney Friedman of Fort Benjamin Harrison. Informal dancing then took place the rest of the evening.

Palestine Fasts As British Hold Rommel

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency JERUSALEM—A day of fast and prayers was observed by the Jews throughout Palestine on the occasion of the seventeenth day of Tamuz. A procession of orthodox children and elders marched through the streets of Jerusalem bearing posters which called upon the rest of the population to join in prayers for the victory of the Allied Nations and for destruction of the forces endangering the Holy Land. Acting on a proclamation issued by the rabbinate, the shofar was blown in all synagogues and chapters from the Psalms were recited.

American Jews and other American citizens residing in Palestine are flooding the American consulate in Jerusalem with inquiries regarding the possibility of their joining the American armed forces in the Near East. A number of American Jews in Palestine enlisted in the British forces last month when it was announced that U.S. Citizens could enlist in the British military units without taking an oath of allegiance to the King.

Pottsville Congregation Joins Z.O.A. En Masse

POTTSVILE, PA.—The first mass enrollment of an entire congregation in the Zionist Organization of America this year took place here last week, when the Synagogue "Ohab Zedek" unanimously voted to join as full fledged members of the organization. This action was taken at a general membership meeting of the congregation, following addresses by Mr. Simon Shetzer, Executive Director of the Z.O.A., and Mr. Sidney Marks, field director of the Seaboard Zionist Region.

The mass enrollment of the congregation has brought to the Zionist organization 152 new members, who, together with the existing members in that community, comprise the newly organized Ohab Zedek Zionist District. With the community numbering 175 Jewish families, the decision of the congregation converts Pottsville into a virtually 100 per cent Zionist comPICNIC SET IN LAFAYETTE

Pilams Set Up Gold Service Honor Trophy Special

BLOOMINGTON-This week. in honor of brothers who have entered the armed forces of our nation, Pi Lambda Phi instituted a Gold Service Honor Trophy, to be inscribed with the names of those of us who have answered the call of their great country.

Along gayer lines, this past fourth of July week-end saw a mass exodus of brothers to their homes all over the state and country. By far the majority of them though, visited Gary. The evening of the Fourth was the cue for celebration, and many of our brothers and their dates enjoyed themselves at a beach party on the shores of Lake Michigan. Among those who were present were Brother Lou Sosin, Hammond and Betty Beitman of Indianapolis; Pledge Lester Ottenheimer, and Elaine Posner, East Chicago; Brother Sid Izsak, Indianapolis and Mildred Lasser, Gary; Brother Gordon Saver, of New York and Annette Chaikin of Gary; Brother Marvin Kleinman, Indiana Harbor, and Ione Green of Chicago. Brothers Bernard Roth, Gary, Len Goodman

At present we are looking forward to our first Summer Formal, to be held in honor of the Pledge group, the evening of July 18.

Teps Visit Girls, Parents Over Week-End

WEST LAFAYETTE - Here we are back in the Tep house from a short vacation.

Pledge Jack Soloway took his leave Wednesday evening to visit his parents in Rochester, N. Y. Thursday afternoon an other departure toward Crown Point and Gary took place; Brother Jack Tadman visited his parents in Crown Point and then to Gary to visit Miss Pegge Ann Bobele. By Thursday evening, the house was almost empty.

Brothers Bert Jacobs, Art Brownstein, and Herb Eckstein spent the few days in Michigan City. Art met Louise Goldenberg there. Bert and Herb met some friends from Chicago.

East Chicago and Gary went Burt Rosen, Yale Shaevitz and Hy Smulevitz. Burt and stayed at Burt's home Yale Brother Smulevitz went home with a fraternity pin and came back with a box of cigars. The pin went to Miss Annette Jeffe of East Chicago. The cigars went to the Teps. Congratulations, Hy. Also to Gary journeyed pledge Morris Bornstein.

A small caravan wended its way to Chicago. Brothers Alan Arkin, Sheldon Berry, and Don Hoffman vacationed in the "Windy City". Brother Harold Krumholtz and pledge Bill Abrams spent the week-end at Bill's home in South Bend Brothers Norman Spetner and Norman Tulin went to South Haven, Michigan where they met Mrs. Spetner who came from St. Louis, Mo. Brother Maury Bernhard took an extended leave of absence to visit his parents in New York City. To Louisville, Ky., went pledge Alvin Kaplan to visit his parents Pledges Bob Tieger and Martin Garelick stayed in the house for the week-end. Jerry Goldman also helped keep the house open.

Kansas City, his home, with over 450 members of the lodge celebrating his election as first vicepresident of the District. Lew's father was on the platform with him, and Lew, I'll bet, delivered the same speech I heard him deliver three times last year, and you probably heard too, as he toured the Indiana lodges last year.

Dave, now the proud papa of a baby daughter, Gail by name (he also has a beautiful son named Bruce) narrowly escaped injury when the plane he was riding in, on landing, at Dayton, O., after a trip from South Bend, locked wings with a grounded plane at the airport.

To make the day complete, I spent over an hour with Rabbi Taxav.

Remember the item in the News about the USO at Kirshbaum in our issue of several weeks back in which Ft. Harrison Soldier Elliot Karlin told about calling his mother by telephone in Boston only to learn that she had received a letter than a. m. from Bill Rosenberg, USO representative here telling about Elliot's welfare and progress. Well, Sara Zeserson Sawyer, who once wrote several items which were printed in The Post, and who seems to read our paper religiously, saw Elliot's name in the paper, recognized him as a friend of long standing, and mailed the clipping to him. All of which prompted Bill Rosenberg to remark, "That it's a small world, isn't it?"

Incidentally Bill, who has been busier than a worker in an airplane factory, is doing an excellent job here.

I understand that Rabbi Charry is to receive some very handsome gifts before he leaves. Also I can tell you a few names which are already getting consideration as his successor. I wonder if he'll be a Zionist?

Did you know that Gerald L. K. Smith, former Huey Long aide, and ex-Silver Shirter, who is now running for the U.S. Senate in Michigan, used to live across the street from Eph Levin on Blue Ridge Road?

Isidore Feibleman called to tell me how all wet I was (and probably am and will continue to be) about the item and then the cornumber 2 in connection with Dick Efroymson's resignation as second Many of the fratres visited vice-president of the Indiana-Gary. Best news of the vaca- mimeographed report on the Hillel tion was the pinning of Miss Foundation and Councilorship at readers didn't understand Indiana and Purdue respectively. Here's a prophecy. Jack Gole will make one of the finest presidents the State Association has ever had. Jack runs a large manufacturing concern in Michigan City.

> Several weeks back The Post printed a call from the USO Center at Kirshbaum for some typewriters and several large electric fans on pedestals. That request resulted in only one response. While I was in Terre Haute Tuesday my girl Friday (we have five girls in the office working full time now) took the following player is needed, as a record clut notes from Bill Rosenberg, to which at the end was appended this caution: "Mr. Rosenberg said to be sure to tell you that 'gently does it'." Now who could have told Bill that I'm not gentle in what I write.

Anyway here's Bill's message, and I hope this is the very last time that I'll have to repeat this request for material for the USO club at Kirshbaum. Where is your pride Indianapolis Jewry?

"Due to a new training battalion at Billings Hospital at Fort Benjamin Harrison, the Medical Detachment of the Enlisted Technical School, there has been a sudden increase in the number of Jewish service men in town to the tune of several hundred. Naturally, these boys have been invited immediately to private homes and to use the various facilities at Kirshbaum Center over the week-ends. Because of the constant wear and tear, the furnishings at the Center are rapidly deteriorating and replacements are badly needed. In the past few weeks through these columns the public was asked to donate typewriters and electric fans to Kirshbaum, and probably because the realize the urgent necessity for these items, only one respon was made to this call, althou some cash was contributed too Someone loaned one portable typewriter to Kirshbaum. Now another plea is being made to the community, and this time it is really urgent.

"The boys who use the service of the Center need lounge furni. ture, arm chairs, occasion tables, sofas, upholstered chair in general, writing tables and as trays among other things. Particularly at this time, a recor for service men is being formed Any albums of good music o single records would also be an preciated. It would be fitting to some group or organization to undertake to sponsor a mu room. Any one interested in any of the above items or who h anything to donate to Kirshbau Center, please contact the Center This is a worthy cause."

By PHINEAS BIRON _

WE'RE TELLING YOU

We've just seen a most pathetic letter from the Jewish internees at the Alien Detention Station at Kenedy, Texas, declaring their readiness to enlist in the proposed Jewish Army. All reference to Hitler and Fascism in this letter incidentally, had been eliminated by the censor, and we're wondering why. Also, why should victims of the Nazi monster be detained in an American concentration camp? The exmufti of Jerusalem, El Husseini, who has been the guest of Hitler and Mussolini since his escape from the Near East, is reported to be with Rommel's forces, and to be active in rallying Moslem sentiment for Hitler in territories captured by the Nazi Field Marshal. Here's a sad commentary on the callousness of man these days. The announcement by a representative of the British Section of the World Jewish Congress in London that a million Jews have died as a direct result of Nazi persecution has called forth practically no reaction in the American press.

WAR ECHOES

"What price glory?" asks Harry Hershfield. He goes on to explain that Napoleon is now known as a cake, and Bismark is immortalized in the form of a herring, and wonders in what form future generations will see the name of Hitler perpetuated.

LETTERS AND ART

Orchids to sculptor Jo Davidson for his collection of heads of the Presidents of the South American Republics, which he made in the course of his 16,000-mile journey through those countries last year. The collection, on view at the National Gallery of Art at Washington, is considered an invaluable asset of the inter-American good will effort. If you're coming to New York this summer be sure you drop in at the Museum of Modern Art, which has just added to its permanent collection eighteen works by modern German artists whom Hitler has blacklisted. The names that made French history are coming to this country one by one. The latest arrival is Pierre Dreyfus, son of that Alfred Dreyfus whose case will remain a turning point in the annals of France. Pierre intends to write a book on his experiences in war-torn Europe.

STAGE AND SCREEN

Now Hollywood has its first pair of twin producers. They are Julius and Philip Epstein, whom Warner Brothers have just raised to producer status-simultaneously, of course, as is fitting in the case of twins. The Epstein brothers have long been among filmland's best screen-playwrites, and, indeed, had a great deal to do with the current success "Yankee Doodle Dandy." Paul Muni, they say, would like to portray Josef Stalin in a biographical picture. But pity the poor Hollywood casting directors. One of theme recently sent out for an actor to play the part of Reinhard Heydrich, Hitler's slaughterer of Czechs—and not a single one of the film rapital's thousands of extras applied for the job. The late Rudolph Schildkraut was a well-known figure on Second Avenue, the East Side's Broadway, but we believe that last week marked the first appearance of his son, Joseph Schildkraut, on a Yiddish stage. The occasion was the Yiddish Theater Army and Navy Relief We've never run across "Jerusalem Jake," but Winchell reports that he's a Negro panhandler who worked the Broadway beat, accosting passersby in fluent Yiddish with pleas for small change to enable him to pay his fare "back to Jerusalem."

ABOUT PEOPLE

Time was when the austere New York Times wouldn't dream of hiring a young lady reporter. But this seems to be changed now. At least, the report is that a young lady now has such a job. Though of course this particular girl has a special pull, her papa being Arthur Hays Sulzberger, publisher of the paper. Congratulations to Eleazar Lipsky, son of the veteran Zionist leader Louis Lipsky, on his appaointment to the post of Assistant District Attorney in New York. A most promising piano virtuoso is 15-year-old Eleanor Fine of New York, whom critics are hailing as a female Paderewski. Then there's veteran pianist Moriz Rosenthal, who will be celebrating his 80th birthday in December, but who's going strong none the less. His new Victor record of Johann Strauss' "Carneval de Vienne" is enchanting music lovers everywhere.

WEEKLY GIGGLE

Winchell tells the one about the Gestapo leader who was informed of his promotion to the post of Protector of a locality in Czechoslovakia. "Thank you," he said, saluting, and asked: "Now what should be my first move?" "I suggest," replied his superior officer, "that you notify your next of kin." Then there's the story of the German who was attacked by a hold-up man during a blackout, and started to shout: "Help, Murder!" Whereupon the robber shushed him: "Don't you know it's dangerous to discuss politics so loudly?"

AL SEGAL Speaks On

"Bright Wings"

MR. SEGAL drew voluminous, fragrant clouds out of his pipe. He looked almost volcanic as he sat in his living room giving out vapors. He always does wrap himself in smoke when he is feeling solemn or when some other emotion intrudes upon the even tenor of his

When he gets angry he lets himself out in short, quick puffs like a fretful switch engine. This time he was smoking slowly, deliberately and philosophically, like Vesuvius in the long periods between eruptions.

His being solemn had to do with a certain event in his life. He had come to a milestone and Mr. Segal was looking backward and forward through the smoke.

He was having a birthday. It was enough to say that he is three years older than he was the last time he mentioned here the fact of his having a birthday.

Mr. Segal, most unoriginally, had begun by thinking how time just flies away. He couldn't be that old. He's always kidding himself by saying he surely can't be as old as the number of his years indicate. He says this mere boy that he is can't be as old as his years suggest. There's some mistake.

Only when he looks at his contemporaries with whom he went to school does he come to the horrible realization of being well along in his years. They look like aging men. Ralph is weazened, tired looking old gentleman. "Bud's" head is all white.

From time to time he is an honorary pallbearer at funerals. He feels distressed at having arrived at the stately old age of being a pallbearer. He remembers that when he was a young reporter, covering funerals, he used to notice that honorary pallbearers invariably were venerable-looking people, faded antiques.

Mr. Segal couldn't feel any too joyous about this birthday. In fact, he had received rather churlishly the handshakes of his friends. He had been almost rude to insurance agents who had called up to congratulate him. They were inexorable time-keepers who keep books on a customer's years and birthdays seem to get sadistic pleasure from calling him up and reminding him he was a year older and that life is short, life is earnest and maybe it's about time to think of more insurance.

Anyway, this birthday hadn't fallen in a happy hour of the world. Tobruk and Sevastopole had just been lost. He couldn't do anything about that. He had just received his occupation questionaire from the draft board (he had registered in the 45-65 bracket) and there wasn't even one occupation listed in it that Mr. Segal was good for. There was no call for columnists in this war.

Mr. Segal was a useless man in a grave crisis of mankind, what with his ripe years, what with his futile hands that didn't even know how to do with a screw-driver. The world was crashing about his ears and all he could do was to sit here in agonized frustration, looking backward at the happier time of the world in which the greater part of his life had been lived.

Anyway it had seemed a good world; he scarcely knew he was sitting on the edge of a volcano. He could see hot bubbles of hate at his feet but he was sure that these were only trifling blisters that would subside.

Now, swathed in this meditative smoke, he remembered fondly the time when hating was only a private pleasure that specialized on individuals. It was not diffused over great masses of people. It was fastidious and therefore as more enjoyable than wallowing in a gallon of it. In that time Mr. Zilch might be hated but not all his sisters, cousins and aunts as well. It was nowhere a national policy to hate all Zilches, nowhere a wide-spread social

Mr. Segal thought it was rather to the credit of his ripe years that he himself had kept on hating people in particular. To his mind hate was an individual, purely personal dish not a big platter from which to wolf with a lot of other people. For example, he could thoroughly enjoy hating Hitler, Goebbels and Goering, but he couldn't hate all the German people. He thought there must be a saving remnant of them, some millions of them with whom, on the ultimate day of reckoning, he could join arms and march toward the brotherhood.

To think this made him feel that even though he may have lived too long to be of any use in the war, he had lived to some good: for he had arrived at something of the wisdom that discriminates in judgment. It was only a foothill of wisdom, yet Mr. Segal could feel that even a foothill was worth attaining since the ultimate peak was so far beyond the reach of his frail mind. Mr. Segal was grasping at such small comforts to justify himself on his birthday.

Somehow all of this brought up the matter of Jews. Mr. Segal is himself a Jewish gentleman. It occurred to him that being Jewish didn't mean to him what it did in some of his earlier years. He remembered the time when to him being Jewish meant something separate. He surrounded himself with a spiritual and intellectual ghetto that was central to all human life; the pain of Israel was exclusive, as if it were a special bundle of pain apart from the big load of human pain.

Mr. Segal thought that on this, his birthday, he could congratulate himself. By evolutionary process he had emerged from his exclusive cocoon and was preening his feeble wings to fly high toward the sunlight with all others of good will. A dazzling flight of idealism toward the dawn of brotherhood. Men of good will rising high on winged ideals to show mankind the way.

The pain of Israel was not separate from the agony of mankind; it was all in one bundle. There was no separate Jewish destiny; it was all in one family and there could be no justice for Jews apart from justice for all mankind. When there was justice for the whole human family, when every man had his just due of living and livelihood, there would also be justice for the Jews. Yes, he thought, how dogs snarl and get savage when there are too few bones to go around.

Mr. Segal rather liked the idea of a multitude of bright wings rising toward the dawn of brotherhood. It was a pleasing picture woven in the smoke of his pipe. It illuminated the darkness of his birthday: Tobruk and Sevastopol gone. The next hundred years surely are. going to be better, thought Mr. Segal in the rapt spell of his vision. He hoped to live to see it all, and, emerging from the aura of his smoke, he went bravely into the new year of his life.

PIECES OF HATE

Richard E. Gutstadt

Nat'l Dir. AntiDefamation League of B'nai B'rith

Newspaper editors are being warned of a new trick now being used by un-American persons to spread racial hate in America. Letters are sent to the "Voice of the People" columns, supposedly by a Christian, who praises the virtues of Jews and then laments the many foibles of Christians, concluding that it is only fitting and proper that the Jews assume leadership in this country. The trick worked in a Portland, Oregon, paper.

The Social Justice Publishing Co. mailed what appeared to be a final letter to its subscribers, informing them that their failure to receive any further issues was due to the refusal of the type setting and printing firms to fulfill their respective obligations under their contracts. The publishing company attempts to create the impression that there was nothing to prevent them from continuing to operate inasmuch as only one particular issue had been found seditious. If the printing companies were not frightened by Biddle everything would have worked out. The letter states that although it was no fault of the publishing company, the subscriber, if he so desires, could obtain a refund on the unearned portion of the subscription. One sentence of the letter is of particular interest in view of Coughlin disclaiming any interest or ownership in the paper. It states: "Our assets are probably insufficient to pay income taxes and refund all unearned subscriptions, but we feel certain that Father Coughlin will see to it that all subscribers receive the unearned subscription monies due them."

When William Dudley Pelley ran into legal difficulties as a result of his un-American activities, he appointed in his place as editor of the "Galilean," Victor H. Broenstrupp, a prolific anti-Semitic writer. Broenstrupp used the name of Count Cherep-Spiridovich, a Russian anti-Semite who died in 1923. He gave as his reason a dramatic incident, to-wit: he promised the Count on his death bed that he would carry on his work as well as his name. It now comes to light that Broenstrupp, who constantly attacked the Jew as a person lacking in ethics, lost his right to practice law in the State of Ohio through disbarment proceedings in June, 1913. The Court in its finding stated, after reviewing the evidence, that they found him "guilty of unprofessional conduct involving moral turpitude and misconduct in office."

John E. Kelly, who is well known on the East Coast as a paid propagandist for Franco Spain and an ardent supporter of the Christian Front, is back in public print, this time with an article attacking Ambassador Litvinoff. The interesting part is not the attack, which is his privilege, but the striking similarity between his article and a previous article against Litvinoff which was printed by the New York Bund in 1936.

The Anti-Defamation League's attention has been called to a letter sent out by George E. Hornby on the stationery of the "Disabled American Veterans of the World War," located at 1620 N. 13th St., Boise, Idaho. The opening sentence starts with "We are planning what will probably be the biggest surprise of 1942 for Jewry. We hope you and any of your friends who are dependable and trustworthy Yankees will find it possible to come to the convention." Actually, this conference has among its instigators two well known vicious anti-Semites, Cornelius Schroeder of Denver and Frank Clark of Tacoma, Washington. Hornby's name appears on the stationery as State Executive Committeeman of the Disabled American Veterans group. The League is checking to find out more about the organization and if it is officially connected with the announced meeting or in accord with Hornby's sentiments.

Recently this column mentioned the fact that Father Coughlin groups, far from ceasing activities, were reorganizing themselves into new groups with new names. One such group is the "Graphic Arts and Anchor Club," 35 W. 43rd St., New York City. Although they have not as yet filed any business or corporate certificate, a drive for membership is on. In the meantime, the officers state that the organization draws its members from the printing trades and that one of its purposes will be to promote 'Christian Americanism' in the country. They were unusually evasive in revealing any information concerning future meetings and activities.

Current Comment

Weizmann Leadership Denounced in the London Jewish Chronicle under heading "Spare a Dime" Zionism'-A tragic example of "beggarly" Zionism was provided by many of the speeches at the hastily improvised Zionist conference in New York this week. The Zionist leader, who used to chide the British Government with whittling down its Balfour promise, gave a demonstration of whittling that out-whittled all before. "As long as British policy in Palestine permits us to acquire land and bring in Jews, I am ready to put up with everything," he supplicated. If, of course, this was really an artful reference to the "keys of Palestine," it was surely very impolitic to dangle them in this way. And later he blushed like a maiden overwhelmed at the thought of a Jewish Army of a size worthy of the name and worth the trouble involved, declaring, even at this late hour, that he would be quite satisfied with a small contingent. He forgot that the time is past when-as was urged in these columns before America was brought into the war -the opportunity should have been found to build up a Jewish Army from initial small British contingents. The hint that there had been some sort of behind-the-scenes negotiations about the Army along these now belated lines was perhaps not the least disquieting feature of the gathering, which, with its spate of fulsomeness, from Dr. Nahum Goldmann, and the drench of theatrical sentimentalism anent Herzl's signet ring, was enough to make the great founder of Zionism turn in his grave.

Mrs. Belle Stein, who was very active in all Jewish and communal work in Lafayette, has moved to Indianapolis and will make her residence at the Columbia Club. It was impossible to go to any meeting for any purpose, B'nai B'rith, Temple Sisterhood, Federation and not find Mrs. Stein as one of the principal workers.

H. L. Meites, publisher of The Chicago Jewish Chronicle reports in his interesting column, "Jottings" the following incident:

A 6-year-old Irish Catholic boy was told in school that each member of the class should submit names of any of his family serving in the American armed forces. Letters would be written to them, and prayers would be said for their safety and well being, he was told. The little lad had no relatives in the service, but his family knew a young Jewish soldier at Camp Forrest. So his name went on the list, and prayers by Catholic school children are being said for the Jewish soldier.

Seymour Weisberger, B'nai B'rith State Association president, writes that he visited Mr. and Mrs. Julius Friedman at the Hotel Sherry in Chicago, where Mr. Friedman is convalescing after a stay in Michael Reese Hospital. The Friedmans send regards to their many friends throughout Indiana, Seymour passes on. Julius is a past president of the State Association.

Some weeks back The Post ran a series of advertisements urging the purchase of War Savings Bonds and Stamps, which were sponsored by a group of firms and individuals. The advertisements evoked wide and favorable comment, for several reasons, the most significant of which we believe was the fact that we limited the sponsors to Jewish films only, so that the message came to our readers sponsored by Jewish firms and individuals in a Jewish paper. Now, I notice that The American Jewish Outlook, of Pittsburgh, has followed the same plan, and in its issue last week carried a full page advertisement on the sale of bonds and stamps. bearing the signatures of only Jewish firms and individuals.

Rabbi Charry Leaves Indianapolis

UCH AS THE Jewish community of Indiana VICH AS THE Jewish community regrets the acceptance by Rabbi Elias Charry of the pulpit of the Germantown Community Center, at the same time it is elated in the splendid opportunity for greater achievement offered to Rabbi Charry in his new position, in one of the finest Conservative congregations in the United States. That Rabbi Charry succeeds in his new pulpit Rabbi Leon S. Lang, who holds the position of president of the Rabbinical Assembly of America, is proof enough of the importance of Rabbi Charry's new pul-

This Friday night Beth El Congregation in a monster service will say goodbye to Rabbi Charry. Beth El will wish godspeed to the man who spent most of his time in building up his own congregation, in the belief that with this as his first goal, the remainder of his goals as a rabbi would be naturally and almost automatically effected. A strong Beth El with a loyal membership meant to Rabbi Charry a powerful foundation stone for his furtherance of Zionism, for the continuance of Conservative Judaism in Indianapolis, for the instruction of the young in the history and ideals of its people, for participation in all community activities.

In the past few years Rabbi Charry's work with his own congregation began to be noticed nationally, and he was in much demand from other communities. Thus the call to the Germantown Community Center pulpit. Rabbi Charry's host of friends in Indiana will watch his work in his new community with interest, and knowing him as they do, with confidence and expectation of much and greater accomplishments.

Meetings During Summer Urged

N a state like Indiana where the summer sun can beat down in suffocating waves, the suggestion contained in The National Jewish Monthly, official B'nai B'rith magazine, that meetings be continued throughout the summer will meet with no little opposition and Indiana's sixteen lodges will find it difficult to get out the membership even if the magazine's advice that the one item of business at these meetings be confined to participation in the war effort, is followed.

But difficult as it may be, the reasoning of The National Monthly will be hard to alibi. "The Axis never takes a vacation," the magazine belabors a lady who complained about the difficulties encountered in taking her annual vacation. "Last summer and the summer before that and all the way back to the summer of 1933," the magazine declared, "the Fascists were training their armies and navies, working their munitions factories three shifts a day, rationing out essential goods and services to the people. And during each of these summers we Americans were taking vacations. We lolled on sandy beaches and revelled in the bracing air of the mountains-while the Nazis, the Italians and the Japs prepared for world conquest, prepared to end all vacations for us forever."

It is impossible to argue against such reasoning as the following from the same edi-

"No, there must be no vacations this year, except those which do not in any way retard the war effort. We hope B'nai B'rith lodges, for instance, will continue to hold monthly meetings, wherever possible, during the summer. Such meetings could perhaps be held out-of-doors. There need be no speaker, no formal program. The whole meeting might well be devoted to continuing the work of B'nai B'rith since Pearl Harbor: selling War Bonds, recruiting civilian defense workers, signing up blood donors for the Red Cross, entertaining soldiers. B'nai B'rith has too marvelous a nationwide machinery to close it down just because of the heat. Bombs are a lot hotter than summer weather."

The Post hopes that Indiana lodges will not shut down for the summer. The Post hopes that every lodge in Indiana, at the specific behest of Seymour Weisberger, president of the Indiana-Kentucky State Association of B'nai B'rith, will hold at least one meeting during the summer at which the lodge's participation in the war work will be the sole business, to the end that every member will become a blood donor to the Red Cross blood bank, that every member will have concentrated on some form of civilian defense, either taking the Red Cross First Aid course, volunteering as an air raid warden or auxiliary police, and to the end that every member will have done all in his power to foster the sale of stamps and bonds.

Even Jews Don't Want To Believe It

THE IGNORING by the daily press of the shocking news of the massacre of hundreds of thousands of Jews in Eastern Europe has pained Jewish leaders. Eye-witness accounts of Jews being dumped alive in mass graves, of Jews machine-gunned like cattle, of Jews drowned and of Jews decimated in mobile gas chambers, has not moved the pen of any editorial writer in the daily press of this nation.

But at the same time a subscriber of The B'nai B'rith Messenger of Los Angeles writes in to cancel his subscription because the news is "too morbid."

Although The Messenger did a fine job of answering this particular reader, certainly the letter-writer represents more than just a stray segment of American Jewry. And if Jews, inured to tales of slaughter by countless pogroms, turn their eyes and ears away, what can be expected of the editorial writer who cannot believe horror tales so gruesome as on the surface to appear impossible.

The U.S. and Zionism

LTHOUGH some Zionists become quite pur-A turbed from time to time when the anti-Zionist group make further demonstration of its beliefs against the establishment of a Jewish National State in Palestine, it should be evident on more sober deliberation that when the moment comes for the United States to make its weight felt for the furtherance of the Zionist ideal, this nation will plump solidly for the full demands of Zionism.

It could hardly be otherwise. An administration which has continued so unswervingly on the path, even in the delirious past decade, of advancement for the common people as a whole, would deny its own will and convictions if it did not see in the transformation of land and men in Palestine a mirror of its own strivings for justice and equality.

If, God willing, the United States does sit at the peace table on the winning side, the problem will devolve itself, as far as Zionism is concerned, not with trying to determine the will of the Jewish people for a return to their Homeland, as much as trying to find a formula for bringing about this end.

HAMMOND B'NAI B'RITH LEADER SAYS GROWN-UPS FALLING DOWN ON JOB

To the editor,

It seems to me that the majority of the people fail to realize the importance of full co-operation with the war effort, and are unwilling to make even small sacrifices in helping to carry on this war to a successful conclusion. Take, for instance, the request of voluntary contributions of rubber or articles containing rubber. It is obvious that only our children have so far done their duty, and we grownups have only looked on and smilingly approved. What about us? Have we done our duty? If we had, we would not have to have an additional 10 days' grace from our President.

Come on, you grownups! Take out your rubber mats from your automobiles and give them to your government.

Residents of Hammond can bring them to me, and we will supply them with a canvas mat good enough for any car free. JIM BROWN.

Hammond, Ind.

Editor's Note: Mr. Brown, a Hammond business man, is an active member of that city's B'nai B'rith.
